ABSTRACT

Ayurveda, which means the science of life and is a medicinal system in India, derives from the words "aye," which means life, and "veda," which means to know. In 1930, Mr. Manal founds the Himalaya Pharmaceutical Company. A few years later, his older brother Mr. Misal joined him, and the two of them began expanding the business. An trade or transaction meant to satiate human needs or wants is at the heart of marketing. In other words, marketing is an activity carried out by people to fulfil their needs and desires through an exchange process. A demand is a wish that the customer is willing to spend money for. Anything or a service that a consumer wants or seeks is considered a want. When supported by the ability to purchase, desires become demands. A needs is anything the consumer feels to keep himself alive and healthy. This range offers the goodness of natural solutions for daily use, with no side effects. Personal care products is one of the very essential and common use consumer products for every individual in their day to day life irrespective of rich and poor, caste and religion, etc., in order to facilitate the present study first of all it will be benefit for us to have a birdseye in view of Himalaya her balmarket in Coimbatore city.

INTRODUCTION

Mr. M. Mana established the Himalaya Drug Company in 1930 with the goal of modernizing Ayurveda for society and revealing the secrets of this 5,000-year-old medical system. This involved consulting old ayurveda books, choosing local plants, and putting the compositions through contemporary pharmacological testing. Studies on safety and toxicity to develop novel medications and treatments. 80 years ago, when visiting Burma. Mr. Manal observed elephants being fed a root to calm their agitation. The Rauwolfia serpentine plant is the source of this. He had the plant's impact on elephants carefully examined since he was fascinated by it. The first anti-hypertensive medication in the world was introduced in 1934 following substantial study. The legacy of researching nature forms the foundation of Himalaya Operations. Himalaya has pioneered the use of modern science to rediscover and validate Ayurveda's secrets. Cutting edge technology is employed to create pharmaceutical grade ayurvedic products. As a confirmation that Himalaya is dedicated to providing the highest quality and consistency in herbal care. The company was awarded an ISO 9001:2008 certification in 2003.
