Abstract: Tribal people have lived in India since ancient times. The socio-economic condition of the tribal people is far behind that of the people of other communities in India, which is a cause for concern for development. The socio-economic condition of a large section of the Scheduled Tribes of the country is not satisfactory. Their condition still indicates that they are a backward community among the backward communities of India. Various plans and programmes have been adopted at various levels to solve the problems of the tribes. This article mainly highlighted the socio-economic condition of the Tribal people of Uttar Dinajpur, as per the Census 2011, and standard of living. The paper is based on secondary data which are collected from several sources. According to the 2011 Census, the socio-economic condition of the tribal people of Uttar Dinajpur are not sufficient for their development. This article will help in analyzing the condition of tribal people in Uttar Dinajpur.

INTRODUCTION

In India, in the social and economic spheres, there are various forms of discrimination based on caste, religion, gender, rich and poor. Most of the tribal people of India are still deprived of socio-economic matters. The tribal community is one of the most important social groups in India who are the original inhabitants of India as well as they are one of the vital pillars of Indian society. They have lived in India since time immemorial, with most of the tribes living in Africa, then India. The term 'socio-economic condition' is often widely used in various contexts. The term 'socio-economic condition' has been used to refer to the status of the tribal people in important social and economic matters. Tribals need solutions to their social problems and overall improvement of their economic conditions and their participation in the political fields. Otherwise, India's development, national unity and national integration will be hampered because a large part of the total population of India is Tribal people.

Most of the tribal people of Uttar Dinajpur are socio-economically backward. There is a lack of education, awareness among the tribal people of Uttar Dinajpur district.
SUGGESTIONS
Some vital suggestions for the betterment of the tribal people
1. The tribal people themselves must first take steps to improve their socio-economic condition.
2. Emphasis should be placed on the spread of education for their development.
3. The problems of the tribes of Uttar Dinajpur should be taken seriously by the Government.
4. Various ‘Awareness Programmes’ need taken up for tribal people and their participation should be encouraged.

CONCLUSION
The socio-economic condition of the tribal people determines their standard of living and aspects of development. In the social, economic as well as political spheres, developmental projects need to be formulated and implemented for the tribal people. The Constitution of India provides for special socio-economic and political provisions for the Scheduled Tribes. The people of Scheduled Tribes are a minority in India. Not only that, they are backward in education and extremely weak economically. Their backwardness needs to be overcome and they need to be equated with other communities in India. It is necessary for the interest of India’s democratic ideology and justice. The data obtained from the 2011 Census shows that in fact, the socio-economic status of the tribal people of Uttar Dinajpur has changed a lot. The tribal people of Uttar Dinajpur are now on the path of development. Their own efforts are important for the betterment of the tribal people.
